

Tribal Education Department Pre-Grant Application Training

The Bureau of Indian Education (BIE) has announced that grants ranging from $25,000 to $150,000 per fiscal year are available for federally recognized tribes and their education departments (TED). The grants are designed to help tribes assume control of BIE-funded schools in their communities, promote tribal education capacity, and provide academically rigorous and culturally appropriate education to American Indian students on their reservations and trust lands. Eligible tribal governments may apply for these grants by responding to the Request for Proposals that the BIE published on May 15, 2015, in the Federal Register.

BIE will provide pre-grant application training at several sites to support interested tribes and TEDs in applying for TED grants. BIE will offer three training sessions, one via webinar and two in person, between May 18, 2015 and June 1, 2015. The dates and locations are listed the table below:
