Webinar: The Bureau of Indian Education Reorganization

Description

The Bureau of Indian Education (BIE) is undertaking a reform of its entire administrative and management level to meet the needs of a changing tribal and school environment to improve academic student success. The BIE will conduct a webinar on Tuesday, October 13, 2015 from 1:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. EDT to provide an update on the reorganization. During this 90-minute webinar, the presenter, BIE Director Dr. Monty Roessel, will explain the purpose of the reorganization, the need for the BIE to move from a command and control organization to a service support organization, and how these efforts will seamlessly translate into improved student outcomes and educational opportunities for Native youth.

About the Presenter

Dr. Charles "Monty" Roessel is an enrolled member of the Navajo Nation. He has served as the Director of the Bureau of Indian Education since 2013, overseeing 183 schools located on 64 tribal communities and 23 states. Currently, Dr. Roessel is undertaking a major reform effort of the BIE to create a school improvement agency. He also serves as a member of the American Indian Education Study group, established by both Interior Secretary Sally Jewell and Education Secretary Arne Duncan.
